

Andrew Lusted

With two teenage sons and a wife all trying to work or study remotely, finding a quiet office space was a bit of a challenge for Mr Lusted. Actually, it was more of a challenge for Tim and Matt to find a quiet space to study where their own online lessons weren't interrupted by the sound of their loud primary school teacher dad in action! Luckily for the Lusted boys, setting Dad up in the family caravan in the back yard gave them the chance to study in peace! "It actually works out well for me too", says Andrew, "as I can physically walk away from work at dinner-time and unwind at the end of the day with my work set-up out of sight. There are plenty of times I wish the caravan was parked somewhere more exciting than my back yard though. (I wonder if Ms Eirth would notice if my caravan was quietly towed out into the bush somewhere? Hmmm).